

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A device for sealing envelopes of plastics material, particularly polypropylene, includes a gluing station which, after filling of each envelope, applies an adhesive which can be activated or cured by light radiation onto at least one of the surfaces of the envelope to be glued. Following the gluing station in the conveying direction of the envelopes, a device for air radiation of the applied adhesive is provided.